LOST AND FOUND

My dad is a funny man, always saying things to make people laugh. The other day he was talking with a "highbrow" school marm who was describing a room in a house. She said, "First the eye rests upon some old swords crossed on the walls, then on an ancient mantle, and from there it falls upon an old brick-tiled hearth." and Dad says, "Gosh, it's a good thing you didn't have a glass eye or it would have been smashed, falling around like that." The other night when Dad came home my ma was all sniffling and red around the eyes, and Dad says, "What's the matter Ma?" and she says, "I wasn't going to tell you, but I've lost my diamond ring somewhere. I suppose it has slipped off my finger while I was at work, but I can't find it anywhere." "Don't take on," says Dad, "I found your ring in my pants pocket this morning. You was 'workin' all right when you lost it—you worked while I slept."

There's a reformer lives across the street from us—I don't know what a reformer is but I heard Dad tell Ma to lock the door if she ever saw him coming. He sent his hired man out the other day to learn if any of the places around the town were selling liquor illegally. four days later the hired man came back with his eyes looking like two burnt holes in a blanket and said they were. The other night Ma said she heard that this reformer's son was an awful ladies' man, and Dad said he wouldn't be surprised, 'cause he had seen the kid with some awful specimens. Sunday when we were getting ready for church Ma said that she must get some cold cream for her face, and Dad says "I hear that the milk of human kindness is good for faces, and Ma says, "I wouldn't mind trying it, but if you ever came near me it would sour," and then Dad says, "Come on, we'll be late for church," and when we left the house Ma was chuckling to herself.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address P.
